STANFORD, KY., - DEC. 5, 1899

W. P. WALTON.

JUNE W. GAYLE, of Owen, was nominated for Congress in the 7th district on the 6th ballot. The deadlock had existed up to that time between him, Julian, Moody and Allen, was broken by the latter withdrawing and throwing his strength to Gayle. The other candidates accepted defeat gracefully and each made speeches pledging their support to the nominee, who though not a speaker, said he would work to make up for it. The committee adopted resolutions condemning the use of the military at the polls, expressed confidence in the election of the entire democratic ticket and denounced in unmeasured terms the efforts of the republican and subsidized press and members of the republican party in their attempts to intimidate the county and State election commissioners. The nomination seems to be a victory for Goebel, who has the kindest feelings for Gayle, because he did not sulk when defeated for auditor before the State convention. A regular love feast followed the nomination and the convention broke up in a happy mood, each man determined to do his part towards defeating Bill Owens, that arch traitor to the democracy, which made him what he is, whom the Brownies and republicans have put up to be knocked down.

THE postmaster general in his report says that rural free delivery is being vigorously opposed by the saloon keepers, who find that when the farmer is not compelled to go to the village for his mail, he forgets and neglects his thirst. This reminds us that Gov. Bradley says that some republican saloon keepers came to him with a protest against the day he had set for the election of a congressman in the 7th, because the bars would have to be closed that day and they would lose one of the best of the year, because people drink more about Christmas time. The governor says he could hardly treat the men civilly, but checked himself and told them that they would probably make as much anyway as the fellows would be thirsty after a day's fast and he victorious party would besides feel like celebrating. All of which goes to show that the saloon keepers think they have rights that must not be interfered with, no matter who else is benefited.

THERE were four contestants for the leadership of the minority in Congress, De Armand, of Missouri, Bankhead, of Alabama, Sulzer, of New York, and James D. Richardson, of Tennessee. The latter led from the start and was nominated on the 6th ballot, Bankhead having withdrawn and the vote standing Richardson 90, De Armand 47 and Sulzer 2. The nomination was then made unanimous. Roberts, the Utah polygamist, participated in the canvass he being a democrat. Mr. Richardson is said to be a very clear and cool headed man of a judicial turn of mind and a fine parliamentarian and for the reason especially that he is less excitable and not apt to go off half cocked, will make a better leader than Bailey, who has had the honor for two sessions.

THE program to elect Gen. D. B. Henderson, of Iowa, for speaker of the House, was carried out by the republican caucus Saturday and it was done without opposition and by acclamation. The old officers were renominated with the exception of H. A. Casson, of Wisconsin, as sergeant-at-arms. Congressman Boring put Senator Ed Parker in nomination for this office, but withdrew his name when he saw how the cat would jump. The caucus also decided to adopt without amendment the Reed rules of the last three Congresses.

ALL wasn't lovely in the Brownie convention at Lexington. T. Logan Hocker moved to make Judge Todd chairman of the district executive committee, which was done, much to the chagrin of Capt. James B. Clay, former chairman, who attacked Hocker afterwards cursing him and applying the vilest sort of epithets. Bill Owens and another fellow separated the men and trouble for the nonce was ended. Hocker says Clay must apologize, but he swears he will not. Let dogs delight to bark and fight.

FOR 40 years John Brown's body has lain mouldering into clay, Saturday being the anniversary of his execution at Charleston, Va., for inciting and leading an insurrection at Harper's Ferry. The other John Brown, the one who writes Young in his name, hasn't been buried politically a month yet, but he is dead a long ways than his namesake is now.

THE Brownies at Lexington nominated W. C. Owens, of Scott county, for Congress, and the republicans endorsed him, which they would not have done had there been the shadow of a hope of election. Bill seems to be disposed to go the way of that other notorious Bill and to find his level under the log cabin. He will be eternally snowed under and thereafter none will be so low as to do him honor.

THE State Election Commission met yesterday and proceeded to count the vote, after all except the attorneys and newspaper men had been excluded from the room. Judge Pryor said that every candidate should have strict and impartial justice. The work is proceeding quietly, counties in which contests show up, being passed for the while. A great crowd of republican bulldozers are on hand and threaten to seat Taylor whether he is given the certificate or not. A squirt gun will be fired at them at the proper time, however, and put them to ignominious flight.

Judge Sautley, who left Frankfort last night, says that the result of the board's labors will not likely be announced for several days. It will hear arguments on the contested points and that may require some time. The judge says he does not know what the commission will do, but he is firmly of the belief that if such ballots as the samples were cast in Johnson and other counties that Goebel should have the certificate. The ballots were on tissue paper, the rooster was very small and the square hardly large enough to hold him, while the log cabin and the Brown devices were large and in a ton-acre lot, as Judge Hughes expressed it. These ballots affect 3,800 votes and should be thrown out. Many of the mountain men returned last night and there is not as much excitement at Frankfort as is supposed.

THE nomination of Bill Owens for Congress by the Brownies and republicans has raised a sort of a row and a rumpus. Col. Billy Breckinridge, who writes for the Lexington Herald, says he "will not support him—not because of his opposition in the former contest nor for any utterance made by him in that contest—but because of the means used by him and with his knowledge by which both his nomination and election were secured. We have not united with the Brown democracy, we are not republicans, have not joined the Honest Election League, and have not participated in the conventions which made this nomination; and have remained free to take such course as seemed best after action was taken." Managing Editor Deana Breckinridge: "I know, and every man of any intelligence in this district, who was then old enough to know anything about politics, knows that Mr. Owens got his nomination in 1894 by fraud and his election by theft. The idea of nominating a man whose only success in politics has been through fraud and theft to represent those who fight for honesty in politics is both absurd and suicidal." Fortunately for Bill the support or opposition of the Herald can do no harm or hurt him. He is not in the race and the Gayle that will overtake him will put a quietus on him and his aspirations forever.

MR. EUGENE VOWELS, the capable local editor of the Middlesboro News, has succeeded to the management of the paper, Lt. Geo. W. Albrecht, who has filled the position so creditably, retiring to go to Bristol, Tenn., to run an afternoon paper.

GOV. BRADLEY declined to pardon a fool who was fined for betting that Brown would be elected governor. A man who was idiotic enough to make such a bet should be sent to the feeble minded institute instead of being held legally responsible.

THE republicans in Madison have had no county judge since the war, but now they have a Million.

POLITICIANS AND POLITICS.

Caldwell, Hopkins and Gallatin county democrats met Saturday and denounced military and injunction rule in elections.

Frankfort is full of republicans hauled thither on free passes. Soldiers are also said to be there in citizens' clothes ready for an emergency.

Vice President Hobart left a million of his $2,500,000 estate to his widow. The rest goes to his son, after several charitable bequests are paid.

A pretty picture of Miss Margaret Ingles, of Paris, who is a candidate for enrolling clerk of the Kentucky House, appears in Friday's Louisville Times.

Secretary of State Finley refused to receive the record sent up by the Louisville Election Commissioners, but he found he wasn't the only pill in the box.

The court of appeals dissolved Judge Kimbrough's injunction in the Harrison county case, thus cutting out the 4th ward of Cynthiana and losing Taylor 133 votes.

The democrats of Boyd, Muhlenberg and Knott counties have adopted resolutions condemning the interference of Gov. Bradley and Judge Toney in the recent election.

An Indiana man has sued a prominent politician for damages because he shook the plaintiff's "hand so heartily as to wrench his shoulder, leaving him a cripple for life."

The silver republicans decided to push anti imperialism as a political issue. By this means they hope to gain a foothold in the Eastern States, where the silver idea is not popular.

The Lexington Herald says: The nomination of Mr. Owens was a political repudiation of all the principles involved in the fight against Goebellism; an abandonment of resistance to those practices which made Goebellism possible. To that repudiation, to that abandonment the Herald declines to be a party.

Senator Marcus A. Hanna has announced to his close friends that he will not accept another term as chairman of the republican National committee. He will serve out his present term.

The Lower House of the Georgia Assembly defeated by a vote of 137 to 3, the bill for placing such limitations on the Negro vote in that State as to practically disfranchise the colored voter.

Col. William Lindsay, of Owen county, suggested the slick scheme of encompassing June Gayle's defeat by circulating the report that the democratic nominee was partly a Brown sympathizer.

Former Senator Call, of Florida, will attempt to unseat Senator-elect Tallaferrero, of that State, accusing him of securing his election by bribery, the means being furnished by the Standard Oil Co.

The 56th Congress convened yesterday. Henderson was elected Speaker, receiving 177 votes to Richardson 153. The Senate adjourned shortly after assembling out of respect to the late vice-president.

The House of Representatives will this session have two brothers on its roll. Representative Clayton, of the 3rd Alabama district, and Representative Clayton, of Brooklyn, are both democrats.

Heartless rumor hath it that the L. & N. has dropped out of the game and refuses to put up the chips for Major Owens in his tete-a-tete with the gentleman from "Sweet Owen." If so, tattle, Majah.—Louisville Times.

Thomas Giffe, of Chattanooga, one of the pension attorneys disbarred by Commissioner Evans for alleged crookedness, has brought suit against that official for $25,000 damages. Mr. Giffe alleges that his disbarment was a personal matter.

A dispatch from Cincinnati says that there is a movement on this side of the river as well as in Kentucky to present the name of Gov. W. O. Bradley for the nomination for vice president on the next ticket with McKinley.

Next after the scoundrelly Post and Dispatch, Capt. W. T. Ellis most detests the creatures who, with a big gang of Negroes as their main audience, fawned upon him in a meeting in Owensboro Saturday afternoon.—Owensboro Messenger.

Nature will see to it that miscegenation between the republicans and Brownies in the Ashland district doesn't result in a procreative species of political mongrels. The line of that sort of cross-breeding stops stock still at the mule.—Louisville Times.

They say old Senator Lindsay is hanging around republican headquarters, crying for a crust of comfort. He concedes the legislature to the democrats, but says there are enough anti-Blackburn democrats in both branches to make his chances good.—Stanford Journal.

The longest term congressman has been discovered—that is, the longest term in the House, Thomas Newton, of Virginia, was a representative from 1800 to 1830 continuously. He lost his seat in 1830, but was again elected for a single term, which made his time of service in the House 31 years.

In response to the lying charge of the subsidized press that he would not meet with the election commission, Hon. W. T. Ellis said: "I will be there if I live and if dead, my last request will be to ship my carcass to Frankfort to insure my presence." The meeting of the board was changed from Saturday to yesterday on his account.

Hon. Joe Hayercraft, of Owensboro, in a meeting called to protest against republican tactics, made a most bitter speech, in which he referred to Taylor as a "white livered, peck-marked coward," and said Deboe "should not be given a burial in Kentucky at his death, but should be interred in the filthiest slum that could be found in New York City."

Representative Bailey, of Texas, says that he will protest against an objection to Polygamist Roberts taking his seat, and will argue that he should be admitted, his case to be decided upon later. Mr. Bailey does not claim that Roberts is eligible, but says that the House can not go behind the returns until after Roberts takes his seat, when a two-thirds vote can expel him.

Poor old Lindsay! He dies hard. He has been scourged out of the democratic party as a traitor. He can hope for nothing but political oblivion in the future. Even the republicans would not take him up. They would fear to trust him. He was never known to be true to any friend, in or out of politics, and having betrayed the party that made him all he is, it is not strange the opposition party places no confidence in him.—Owensboro Messenger.

A head end collision of freights near Oakdale Junction killed James Hughes engineer of Somerset, and badly hurt his fireman. The other engineer had his leg broken in jumping. Both engines were demolished.

At Grantsburg, Ind., Dr. E. P. Goss was horse-whipped by Miss Laura Ritter, who accused him of circulating scandalous stories about her.
